

Professional Development Webinars

www.archives.gov/education/distance-learning

Visit the National Archives without leaving your school, college or home! Our interactive webinars for educators feature historical documents as well as resources and strategies for bringing primary sources into your classroom. All webinars are free of charge. Advance registration is required.

Finding Hispanic-Latinx Primary Sources at the U.S. National Archives

Thursday, October 10, 2019, 7 p.m. – 8 p.m. ET

Primary sources related to Hispanic-Latinx culture at the National Archives are numerous, yet can be challenging to discover. In our online Catalog, DocsTeach, and at our research facilities across the country, educators may find official military service records, civil rights initiatives, interactions with Latinx advocacy groups, and more.

What you'll learn:

- How to navigate the National Archives' online resources
- Where to find the National Archives' Hispanic-Latinx primary resources
- Some of the best search terms for discovering these primary sources

Register now to save your place. Webinar Registration Form. A recording of this webinar will not be available.

More Fall Webinars

Wednesday, October 16, 2019, 7 p.m. ET

An Introduction to DocsTeach.org

Wednesday, November 6, 2019, 7 p.m. ET

Native Communities and the Vote: Teaching about American Indian Voting Rights through Documents

Thursday, December 12, 2019, 7 p.m. ET

Teaching the Bill of Rights

Connect your school or district with the National Archives for

DOCSTeach by Request

a custom webinar exploring DocsTeach.org, the online tool for teaching with documents from the National Archives.

Questions?
distancelearning@nara.gov